

DIVISION OF PAROLE AND PROBATION

July 20, 2017

OVERVIEW

The Division of Parole and Probation is a branch of the Department of Public Safety as authorized under Nevada Revised Statutes Chapters 176, 176A and 213. The agency's primary responsibility is community safety, employing sworn peace officers who balance their responsibilities and duties associated with case management by focusing on offender reentry and rehabilitation within the community. Additionally, the Division completes Pre-Sentence Investigation Reports of individuals convicted of felony or gross misdemeanor offenses, makes sentencing recommendations to District Courts statewide, conducts pardons investigations for the Pardons Board, and produces post-conviction reports for the Parole Board.

The Division has ten offices, with its headquarters located in Carson City. The urban offices located in Las Vegas, Reno and Carson City account for the majority of the Division's workload. Although the rural offices account for a smaller amount of the workload, they are responsible for coverage of 75% of the state's geographical area or 87,699 square miles.

The urban offices have the ability to divide the workload into specialized operational units such as Court Services, General Supervision, Gangs, Intensive Supervision, Sex Offenders, Parole, House Arrest, etc. Officers in rural areas perform all the functions of the specialized units, with the exception that they often travel long distances to accomplish their duties and responsibilities.

Division employees work frequently with other law enforcement agencies on matters of mutual concern that impact the local community. The Division plays an integral role in the criminal justice system and enjoys an excellent working relationship with other local, state and federal law enforcement agencies as we recognize the importance of successful reintegration of our offenders within the community.

The Mission of the Division of Parole and Probation is to enhance public trust and community safety, and to provide assistance to the Courts and Parole Board by providing professional supervision of offenders to promote their successful reintegration into society.
